

The Bourbon Street Live Cam Is Live
February 8, 2010

EarthCam.com gives us a live view of Bourbon Street. Of course it's nothing like it was twelve hours ago or so. But it's early. There'll be plenty of time to live vicariously through the drunken revelers. So pop open a bottle of Jim Bean, take off your shirt, kick back and relax and enjoy the festivities.

The camera's original intent was to capture Mardi Gras, which starts tomorrow. But since the Saints are now Super Bowl champs, we get to see the crazy happen a little early.

Good to know that the street cleaners and sweepers can wash off the confetti and vomit so thoroughly. Need this place spic-n-span if we're gonna have thousands of drunks dancing through the streets flashing their boobies at each other.

It's gonna be great!

