

Webcams show construction progress for Vancouver highway project
Viewers have the option of selecting from several pre-set views on cameras
March 2, 2010

Vancouver citizens can now view Webcams showing construction progress of the Port Mann Bridge and Highway 1 improvement project, as well as current road conditions on the Ministry of Transportation and Infrastructure and PMH1 project Web sites.

The new Webcams are located in five areas along the Port Mann Bridge Highway 1 project corridor.

Shirley Bond, Transportation and Infrastructure Minister, said the Webcams will showcase the city's investment in the province.

"These powerful tools ... will also be used to create a video archive of this generational investment in British Columbia's economy and improved quality of life," Bond said.

Webcam footage regarding this project can be seen on the Web sites, www.th.gov.bc.ca/constructioncams and www.pmh1project.com.