

Toronto was covered in a thick blanket of fog this morning (PHOTOS)

October 29, 2019 - Ainsley Smith

Toronto woke up to a thick blanket of fog covering the city this morning, resulting in an eerie start to the day.

As a result, the tops of Toronto buildings, including the CN tower, were pretty much invisible.

And while the misty skies have disappeared and the clearer skies have arrived, many people took a moment to capture the city covered in grey.

If you slept through the foggy weather, here's what you missed out on.